

OFFERS REWARD FOR PROPERTY

Daynes & Son Posts $1,000 for Return of Goods Stolen from Jewelry Store.

LOSS PLACED AT $16,000

NEWS OF CRIME SENT TO OTHER PLACES BY POLICE.

John Daynes & Sons, 26 South Main street, the jewelry firm whose safe was broken open Saturday night or early Sunday morning, has offered a reward of $1,000 for the return of the stolen property, which was first estimated at $15,000.

Upon checking up yesterday, Fred Daynes, manager of the firm, discovered that the loss is even greater than at first estimated. He cannot yet determine the exact value of the property stolen, but says it is at least $16,000.

The burglars, who entered the store through the back door and who knocked off the combination of the safe with a sledge hammer in getting into the safe, have not been located.

Circulars Sent Out.

Circulars announcing the reward of $1,000 have been sent out by the police in every direction and the department has placed itself in telegraphic communication with other cities and towns.

The Daynes firm is not a member of the Jewelers' alliance. Had it been the Pinkerton detective forces would now be at work on the case. The firm carried only $1,000 insurance against burglars, and consequently the loss is almost total.

Fred Daynes said yesterday that, although almost everything of value was included in the plunder, the firm would make a brave effort to recover and that there would be no closing out or bankruptcy proceedings.

When I took hold of the business eight years ago," said Mr. Daynes, "it was greatly run down, owing to the inability of my father, who was then an advanced age. It has taken me eight years to build up the business to where it was the night of the burglary; and I will probably take me another eight years to build it up again. Our rating is very good and our firm has always borne a good reputation. Creditors will be satisfied and the business carried on to the best of my ability."

Pioneer Jewelry Firm.

The Daynes jewelry firm is the oldest establishment of its kind in the intermountain country. John Daynes, founder of the firm, came to Salt Lake from England in 1862. He was a watchmaker by trade and leased from Brigham Young a small lot and erected a wooden building on East Second street, just east of Main street.

The lease was for ten years, at the expiration of which the lease was renewed for twenty years and a brick building erected to replace the original building. The building, the business continued at this place until early in the '80s, when it was moved to the Deseret National Bank building. For a time the business was carried on at 86 Main street, and was removed to the present location about fifteen years ago.

John Daynes died in the spring of 1905, but did not take an active part in the business. J. Fred Daynes has been managing the firm since his return from a mission eight years ago.

The safe from which the property was stolen was of the style and had been in service in Salt Lake for more than twenty years. Had it been of an improved pattern the combination would have been broken down when the lock was broken off, thereby rendering the safe proof against everything but dynamite.

List of Stolen Goods.

The stolen property included forty gold-filled watch cases, thirty-four 14-karat gold watch cases, two solid gold watch cases; four large silver watches; sixty diamond rings, ranging in value from $5 to $175; seventy-two ladies' rings, ranging in value from $10 to $45; seventy-two ladies' fancy set rings, ranging in value from $5 to $12; twenty-five set rings, ranging in value from $2.50 to $5; 120 gold-filled lockets, ranging in price from $2 to $6; twenty-four solid gold lockets, ranging in value from $2 to $10; a wallet of loose diamonds, fifteen packages, size of stones, from 1-16 to 2-8 carats, total value, $3,000; about twenty-seven repair watches; brooches, stick pins, etc.

ADE BLAMES AGAIN

Charges in Coal Land Cases Made More Specific.

ORIGINAL BILLS DISMISSED

UTAH FUEL CO. AND PROMINENT OFFICIALS AFFECTED.

The federal grand jury yesterday afternoon returned indictments against the Utah Fuel company; H. G. Williams, general manager of the company; Robert Forrester, geologist for the company; William D. Foster, secretary to Robert Forrester; George A. Moore, civil engineer for the corporation; Elroy N. Clark of Denver, attorney for the company; and Alexander Cowie, chief clerk in the Denver office.

All these officials indicted by the grand jury are charged with participating in the acquisition of coal lands. The indictments charge each of the men with several specific offenses. These indictments are substitutes for the former indictments, which charged the same offenses, but which were not specific. The original bills returned against the Utah Fuel company officials on December 8, but on the demurrer of the defendants the cases were continued until May 4, and the demurrer was then resubmitted to the grand jury and yesterday the new indictments were brought and the old ones dismissed by District Attorney Booth.

New Evidence Considered.

New evidence was brought to the attention of the grand jury on which the bills returned were based. The charges embodied in the indictments are more specific than the former ones, and the grand jury expressed his opinion that the demurrer of the defendants was not applicable to the indictments in their present form.

The grand jury reported at five yesterday afternoon to Judge Marshall in the United States district court and returned its indictments and was discharged. Just before the grand jury reported the original indictments against the officials. Judge Marshall fixed bail in each of the cases at $3,000. The defendants are held out on the grand jury's hearing on the demurrer which was to have been had on May 4. They will not be rearrested until that time when they will appear before the United States district court and be released from their original bonds and a new bail of $3,000 will be arranged for.

The cases will probably not come up for trial before fall, though the district attorney is desirous of having the defendants tried at the earliest possible moment. Assistant to the United States attorney general, is assisting in the prosecution.

Another Land Fraud Case.

When it reported yesterday afternoon the grand jury returned other indictments against the Utah Fuel company, and a profound secret. It is rumored, however, that at least one of these indictments is in connection with other alleged land fraud cases.

Judge Marshall issued bench warrants for all of those named in the indictments and these were given to the United States marshal to serve.

IDAHO'S BIG WOOL CROP

C. I. Tuttle of Oregon Short Line Returns from Business Trip.

The wool crop of Idaho this spring will be heavier than last year's crop and of finer quality, according to the expressed opinion of C. I. Tuttle, assistant general freight agent of the Oregon Short Line, who returned yesterday from a trip through Idaho in the interest of his road as to wool loading.

"Shearing has been started in only a few corral about the state, but by the last of this month it will be general," said Mr. Tuttle last night. "I believe the wool there will sell very quickly. Several buyers are already in the state and while it is evident they will hold back for prices to go lower a little, I believe the Idaho crop is going to move more readily than the Utah crop is at present."

"From all indications the crop is going to be unusually heavy and of excellent quality. I found conditions in other lines of business very good throughout the state."

ADE BLAMES STAGE FOR HIS GRAY HAIRS

Directing Soubrettes Would Whiten Any Man's Hair, Says Noted Playwright, a Visitor in Salt Lake.

George Ade, the playwright and author, spent yesterday in Salt Lake with friends, and left in the afternoon for Denver on the Rio Grande en route home from a California trip. He was accompanied by his father, a banker of Kentland, Ind.; and Mrs. Davis of Chicago, and Mr. Roberts, his secretary. The party had expected to be here Sunday and remain over, but were delayed by a washout on the Southern Pacific.

Almost as soon as he found his bearings after his train reached town, Ade began seeing the interesting places. With his party he took a Seeing Salt Lake car and made the whole trip, evidently enjoying the "spellers" oration as much as he did the sights. Little incidents along the way reminded him of his own experiences and brought out some typical stories. Seeing a man beating carpets on a lawn as the car passed, Ade smiled and said: "That reminds me of a friend of mine. He said his father was very fond of athletic sports like tennis, so fond of them that he invented sports himself. He had devised one that he called 'Baj Marage'. I never knew how he spelled it, but that's the way it sounded. This Baj Marage was very simple, but it was great exercise. All you had to do was to put up two poles, stretch a rope taut from one pole to the other, lay some carpets over the rope and see how often you could hit them with any club that happened to be handy. It was a great game, but somehow it never became very popular."

His First Visit.

It was Mr. Ade's first visit to Salt Lake, and he enjoyed it greatly. He was particularly interested in the stories of the early days, the reclamation of the desert and the picturesque buildings in Tabernacle square. After the sight-seeing expedition the party was taken for an auto spin along the east bench and down to the Country club, where they were given a trout luncheon as guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Igleheart, who have known Ade since his early newspaper days in Chicago. From there they went to the Tabernacle, where they were given a special organ recital by Professor McClellan. The program included half a dozen numbers, among them the "Pilgrim's Chorus," a favorite of Ade's, the "Andantino" by Lemaire, and others which showed the instrument at its best. The guests of the occasion were delighted with the courtesy shown them by Professor McClellan, and repeatedly expressed their enjoyment of the music.

Ade's Successful Work. As most people know, George Ade has won fame and fortune by his pen. His "Fables in Slang," the first successful book venture, appeared originally in the Chicago Record, as did "Artie." "The Sultan of Sulu" was his first successful effort in stage work, and "The County Chairman" and "The College Widow," which followed, are among the most popular plays ever produced in this country. During the winter, which he has spent at Pasadena, Ade has been working on something new, but it has not reached the stage where he is willing to discuss it. "Pasadena isn't much of a place for work," he says; "everybody who lives there or goes there is too busy having a good time."

Personally, Ade is as unaffected as in the days when he was a reporter on the old Boston Herald. His black hair is streaked with gray, and when he is asked how it happened he says he can account for every one of the silver hairs. "They all came from stage business," he comments. "Directing soubrettes a new play would make any man's hair gray."

Playwright's Cottage.

When he is at home the playwright gets his mail at Brook, Ind., a little town not far from his boyhood home in Kentland. His "cottage" there is the wonder of the natives, a wild extravagance they regard it, but known to guests as a delightful place to visit. It is close enough to Chicago for the city folk to run over whenever business calls, and far enough away to permit work without interruption when necessary. Ade's royalties from his plays have been invested largely in the lands around his old home, which he has filled and improved until the increase in values alone represents a comfortable fortune. His father, who accompanies him on this trip, is nearly 80 years old, but is as keen and interested in life as his son. One of his reminiscences yesterday, when he saw the Tabernacle and temple, was the story of a visit he made to Nauvoo in 1847, when he saw the temple there and met some of the people who afterward joined the exodus to Utah.

ENGLISH AS SHE IS WRIT IN NEWSPAPERS DOES NOT PLEASE PROF. REYNOLDS OF U. OF U.

Frederick William Reynolds, associate professor of English at the University of Utah, commented harshly on the newspaper English of the Salt Lake Tribune in a speech before the teachers of Salt Lake yesterday afternoon.

One of the many points that Professor Reynolds brought out was what he said was the incorrect use of the word "criticize." As an example, he quoted a part of a head in Monday morning's Herald: "Gospel of John is Criticized." He said that as "criticize" was used in this instance in the sense of "find fault with," its use was erroneous.

That there is some ground for a difference of opinion on this point may be inferred from the following definition of the word. This definition is taken from the latest edition of the Century dictionary:

"Criticize, v. trans., to examine or judge critically; utter or write criticisms upon; pass judgment upon with respect to merit or demerit; animadvert upon; discover or weigh the faults and merits of; to censure; to judge of anything with severity; point out defects or faults in."

Although this definition does not conform to the one given by Professor Reynolds, it seems to have been the definition that Addison had in mind when he wrote the following in the Spectator:

"Nor shall I look upon it as any breach of charity to criticize the author, so long as I keep clear of the person."

HIGH SCHOOL ENCAMPMENT

Cadets Decide to Be in Field Twelve Days Near Lehi Junction This Year.

Plans for this annual High school cadet encampment were made yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the battalion. The boys decided, after considering all the available places, that they would camp about one and a half miles from Lehi Junction, on the Utah line. The encampment will be for twelve days, which will be longer than any of the former ones. After the place had been definitely decided on, Captain Webb, the commandant, asked the boys how they intended to get down there, as no means of transportation was possible other than walking or riding on the train. He said that the latter would involve an expense greater than ever before. They discussed the question and decided that they would take the trip in two forced marches, camping half-way, at the hot springs, and come back the same way. Then Captain Webb announced that arrangements were under way with the railroad company which would enable the boys to ride down. The boys even then decided to take the trip in two forced marches.

The three previous encampments have been held at Lagoon. Arrangements will be taken in hand by the executive committee.

SHEETS CASE CONTINUES

Insurance Contest Growing Out of Tragedy Will Be Placed in Jury's Hand Today.

Evidence regarding the mysterious death of Nephi M. Sheets Dec. 27, 1906, was taken in the federal district court yesterday afternoon in the suit brought by the heirs of the deceased against the Preferred Accident Insurance company of New York. The contention of the insurance company is that Sheets committed suicide and that therefore the heirs are not entitled to the insurance.

Several witnesses for the plaintiff and the defense were examined yesterday and the case will go to the jury today. Members of the family of Sheets testified that the revolver found near the body did not belong to the dead man and others testified that they saw footprints leading from the scene of the tragedy.

The defense endeavored to show by witnesses that Sheets was worried over financial troubles and that he often expressed himself as discouraged, because he was unable to make much money. Detectives Chass and Raleigh testified as to the position in which the body lay after the shooting and as to the footprints in the snow near the sidewalk.

The defense had rested and the plaintiffs had begun their rebuttal when court adjourned yesterday afternoon.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED.

Kill the Germs by Breathing Hyomei—Gives Quick Relief.

Many people who have suffered with catarrh for years naturally feel that the disease cannot be cured, and become discouraged.

Their failure to get relief is due to the fact that they have not used the right remedy. Catarrh is an affection of the head, throat and lungs, and cannot be cured by stomach dosing.

The only scientific and natural treatment for this disease is Hyomei, which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, so that its healing medicated air reaches the most remote air-cells, kills all catarrh germs, and restores the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs to a healthy condition.

Hyomei is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold with the understanding that it was to cost absolutely nothing unless it cured. F. C. Schramm sells Hyomei in this way, and F. C. Schramm is always ready to refund the money if it does not relieve and cure catarrh.

The healing and antiseptic balsams of Hyomei perform their purpose to perfection, and by using this remedy for a few times each day you can soon cure yourself of any catarrhal troubles.

A complete Hyomei outfit consisting of a bottle of Hyomei and an inhaler costs but $1.00.
